1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wolff, US Pat. No. 6,209,048 B1 in view of Danknick et al., US Pat. No. 6,021,429.

3. As to claims 1, 3, 8, 11, 15, 16, and 17, 18, Wolff teaches the invention substantially as claimed. Wolff teaches a network system comprising a plurality of terminals interconnected via a network; and a controller controlling the terminals via the network, the controller including a selecting means for selecting one of at least two terminals, a requesting means for requesting the transmitting means of the terminal selected by the selecting means to transmit to the controller the information on...the interconnected terminal, and a switching means for switching from the selected terminal to the other or another of the at least two terminals (Wolff, col. 8, line 52 – col. 10, line 32).

However, Wolff does not explicitly teach at least two of the terminals each including an information obtaining means for obtaining information on the other terminals therefrom, and a transmitting means for transmitting to the controller together with information on the each terminal the information obtained about the other terminals by the information obtaining means. In the same field of endeavor, Danknick teaches a method and apparatus for communicating with a network peripheral and which maintains a list of device information (Danknick, col. 1, line 42 – col. 3, line 63 and col. 9, line 7 – col. 11, line 35). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have incorporated the multiple device information obtaining means as taught by Danknick into the system of Wolff for the purpose of efficiently obtaining network device information.

4. As to claims 2 and 12, Wolff-Danknick teach the system wherein the information on each of the other terminals includes link information for identifying the each terminal on the network (Danknick, col. 1, line 42 – col. 3, line 63).

5. As to claims 4 and 19, Wolff-Danknick teach the system further comprising an interface interconnecting one terminal and the network; the controller further including an interface information obtaining means for obtaining information on the interface therefrom when the one terminal transmits the information on all the terminals to the controller (Danknick, col. 1, line 42 – col. 3, line 63 and col. 9, line 7 – col. 11, line 35).

6. As to claims 5 and 20, Wolff-Danknick teach a setting changing means for changing the setting or settings of the terminal transmitting the information to the controller, or of the interface (Wolff, col. 8, line 52 – col. 10, line 32).

7. As to claims 6, 9 and 13, Wolff-Danknick teach a memory for storing the information on all the terminals (Danknick, col. 1, line 42 – col. 3, line 63 and col. 9, line 7 – col. 11, line 35).

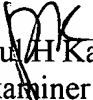

Art Unit: 2152

8. As to claims 7, 10, 14 and 21, Wolff-Danknick teach a system wherein the interconnected terminals is a printer or a scanner (Danknick, col. 1, line 42 – col. 3, line 63 and col. 9, line 7 – col. 11, line 35).
